Colorado Ranchmen Kept in Doors by Ferocious Lions.

SEVERAL TERRIFIC BATTLES.

During the Day and at Night Herdsmen Go Armed.

An Intrepid Mother on Sentinel Duty.—Fights Between Men, Dogs and Felines.

Associated Press Dispatches.

Aspen, Colo., Feb. 10.—This section of Colorado is experiencing one of the severest winters known for years. The mountains have been covered to a great depth of snow since the 20th of September, and the weather has been extremely cold since the beginning of winter. This has driven all kinds of game down into the valleys. Large herds of deer and elk are frequently seen upon the valley ranches, but as a general thing they are so poor as to render them unfit for food. The mountain lions, however, are making life a burden to the ranchmen, and in some locations it is decidedly dangerous to be in the open air after nightfall. They have become so bold that to go about unarmed is an indiscretion that few are guilty of even in broad daylight, and the majority of ranchers are compelled to guard their stock night and day. The lions are vicious in the extreme, being nearly starved to death, and instead of turning tail and scampering off to the mountains as is generally the case when approached in broad daylight, they not only stand their ground but are always on the offensive.

A few days ago John Wilson, who resides on Brush creek, about six miles below Aspen, was working up his team preparatory to bringing a load of grain to Aspen, when his attention was attracted to a large lion crouched at the foot of a haystack which stood in the barnyard and within about ten feet of him. He states that the animal was preparing to spring upon him or the team, and the sight made his hair stand on end and blood run cold. He pulled a revolver, of which he had two in his belt, and fired, but owing to his sudden fright the aim was not accurate, and the ball passed over the beast. This so angered the lion that he immediately sprang upon Mr. Wilson, bearing him to the earth with terrific force. Fortunately the firing of the revolver called to his aid two large dogs, who came tearing into the yard, just as the ferocious beast sprang upon his master, and they set upon the animal, distracting its attention before it had time to fasten its teeth in the flesh of the prostrate man. Then there was a conglomeration of man, dog and lion for a few seconds that would be hard to describe. Mr. Wilson soon succeeded in extricating himself from his dangerous predicament, and watching his chance fired another shot, striking the beast over the temple, but apparently injuring it but slightly, and the fight between the dog and his lionship waxed warmer. Another shot was immediately now, for fear of killing one of the dogs. Mrs. Wilson appeared on the scene at this juncture, armed with a Winchester rifle, but was unable to bring it into use for the same reason. Wilson finally grabbed up a neckyoke and succeeded in crushing in the skull of the lion by a few well-directed blows.

The beast was found to be an old fellow, and measured 8 feet from the point of his nose to the tip of his tail. He was so poor that only skin and bones remained. The carcass was thrown on to a load of grain and brought to town, where it attracted a large amount of attention owing to its enormous size. Mr. Wilson's left arm was considerably lacerated in the encounter and one of the dogs came out of the fight with a broken leg. Two of Mr. Wilson's little children had been playing with a small sled in the yard where the fight took place, but a shot from the lion's rifle was discovered. Mr. Wilson states that it is no uncommon sight to see these lions along the small water courses, but this is the first instance in which they have come into his very yard.

When it becomes necessary for the children to cross the threshold of the door now Mrs. Wilson stands in the door armed with a loaded Winchester.

HE IS FOR ANNEXATION.

Carnegie Says It Is Wrong for Canada and the United States to Remain Apart.

Toronto, Ontario, Feb. 10.—The following is a copy of a letter sent by Andrew Carnegie to John Patterson, manufacturer at Hamilton, on Jan. 13 last: "I am glad to see the subject of the union of the race upon this continent is attracting attention. We have only to consider the benefits flowing from the union of Scotland and England to realize what a similar union of Canada and the United States would bring to both. It seems to me little less than criminal to remain apart. The American constitution does not require the provinces of Canada to give up anything in the way of local government which they now possess. Canada would remain just as much for the Canadians as Scotland remains for the Scotch.

"The Spectator (Canada) is quite right in stating that 'at present there is no indication of a desire for commercial reciprocity with Canada.' How can there be as long as Canada remains subject to a foreign European power with all the dangers that such an unnatural situation involves.

"There is only one way by which Canada can ever achieve a destiny worthy of her, and that is political union with her own race upon this continent to accomplish this. All our efforts should be directed to this end, for it is the noblest work of our day as insuring peace and good will upon the North American continent.

Two Are Missing. London, Feb. 10.—A dispatch from Hughston, capital of the island of St.

Marys, one of the Scilly islands off the southwest coast of England, says that the Greek steamer Embricra has been wrecked off those islands. Fifteen members of the crew have been landed in safety, but the captain of the wrecked vessel and nine of the crew are missing, and it is supposed that they have been drowned.

Huron, S. D., Feb. 10.—H. W. Williams, a young man from Illinois, came to this place. He soon moved further west, accumulated some money and went to Chicago, where he is now engaged in the leather business. Williams' parents lived near Springfield, Ill. His father was killed in the battle of Corinth. His mother had just given birth to a girl and the shock broke her down and she and the babe went to San Francisco to live with Mrs. Todd, a half sister, leaving young Williams in the care of a family which eventually adopted him.

Newberg, with two colored pals, on December 30, burglarized the residence of Mrs. Florence Gonsvoort, on North street. Newberg entered the dining room about supper time, followed by his two companions, and demanded all the cash in the house. All the family fled except Mrs. Gonsvoort's son, a young man, whom the burglars overpowered, and departed, after securing all the cash and whatever else in the house that could be carried off.

GAZZA HEARD FROM.

An Alleged Letter From Him to President Harrison.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 10.—Gazza is still in the field. The latest reliable news of the revolutionist was obtained in El Chichano, the first number of a local Spanish paper which has just appeared as the avowed organ of the revolutionists. El Chichano publishes a copy of what purported to be a lengthy letter sent by Garza to President Harrison. It is written under date of January 11, at La Estrella, state of Tamaulipas, Mexico. It explains the patriotic purposes of the revolutionists to secure a republican form of government in Mexico, and contains the press for having placed him in the light of a bandit and violator of the neutrality laws. He says his only offense is a desire to throw off the tyranny of Diaz, and begs the president will not be misled into further co-operation against him. The letter is in diplomatic form, full of high-sounding phrases, and concludes with the statement that he (Garza) will grow old in the field with his troops before he will make or accept any proposition compromising the principle of his cause.

SELIVSKOFF'S ASSASSIN.

Otto Hauser, the Suicide, Was the Spill-the-Blooder.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 10.—It has now been established beyond doubt that Otto Hauser, who was found dead in a hack on October 28, was the nihilist Stanislaus Padewski, who assassinated General Michael De Selivskoff in Paris November 18, 1890.

Dr. Louis Schroeder of Buffalo, New York, who knew him in Warsaw, Poland, writes here that Hauser was Padewski and that to avoid detection he traveled under different names, in Posen being known as Otto Hoffman, in New York as Otto Heller and in Buffalo and Texas as Otto Hauser. Padewski wrote Schroeder that he feared that he would be delivered up to the Russian government, but declared that he would never be taken alive.

SUICIDE OF A MURDERER.

Fitzsimmons Cuts His Throat After Declaring That His Wife Is Innocent.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 10.—Frederick C. Fitzsimmons, alias Ambrose G. Budd and several other names, who was arrested here Tuesday charged with murder and theft in Pittsburgh, Pa., cut his throat with a penknife at 11 o'clock this morning in a cell at the Parish prison. He will die.

Fitzsimmons left a long letter in which he says he has pursued crime with its fatal consequences. My liberty is again jeopardized, and as liberty or death is paramount in my mind, I prefer the latter to imprisonment, disgrace, slow death and dragging further in the mire the good name of honorable and respected relatives. My beloved wife is the daughter of one of New Orleans' once popular and most respected citizens. My wife, Lucy Rebecca Fitzsimmons, was improperly convicted at Alleghany county court house of murder in the second degree, through the testimony of a perjuring detective, and a prejudiced jury and judge, and is still in imprisonment.

"Knowing that I am about to hurl myself into eternity, I solemnly swear my wife is innocent. I effected escape from Alleghany county jail because I foresaw conviction before the trial began."

CUTS A WOMAN WITH A RAZOR.

Desperate Attack Made Upon a Fruit Dealer's Wife by a Mafia.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 10.—Antonio Lolla, a Sicilian who arrived here from New Orleans some months ago and who is said to be a member of the Mafia society, made a savage attack with a razor this afternoon on Mrs. Rosa Campagna, wife of a fruit dealer, who had Lolla's brother arrested for assault.

Lolla threw the woman to the ground and inflicted a deep gash encircling her throat with a razor, narrowly missing the jugular vein. Then he slashed the woman on the left side of the skull, cutting away a large piece of flesh. The woman seized the razor and had her fingers nearly severed. Lolla was arrested.
